In a culture celebrated for its rich traditions, close-knit families, and strong faith, being Latino and gay, bisexual, or transgender is often unmentionable – and frequently unforgivable.

Tal Como Somos (Just as we are) exposes the realities of living within a culture where strong beliefs about sexual identity mean condemnation and rejection for those whose sexual orientation or manner is different. This feature length documentary candidly examines the lives of six gay Latino men, one transgender woman, and the ties that bind them: their families and friends, religion, and the cultural experiences that shape them. The film showcases individuals who dare to risk it all to live – and be loved - for their truth. (in English with subtitles)
