Inspired by the book of the same name by Robert Trachtenburg, Fenton Bailey and Randy Barbato ("The Eyes of Tammy Faye") traveled the country to ask more than 150 people in five cities to talk about when they realized they were gay. These entertaining, insightful and moving interviews captured not only the "ah-ha!" moments, but also the moments when people first felt radically different from their friends and family.

Bailey and Barbato asked just one simple question: "When did you know?" WHEN I KNEW spotlights 16 of the interviewees - of different ages, sexes and lifestyles - who share their stories in a therapeutic and often liberating fashion. While the actual childhood experiences and initial emotions varied, many experienced similar feelings of isolation, confusion and fear that eventually led to recognition, acceptance, resolve and self-awareness
